Wireframe

A wireframe is essentially tool for the high-level structure that can help keep everyone focused on the main goals and functionality of a website or app. It's like a blueprint, showing where things will go, but not how they look. Wireframes are quick to create and easy to change, making them a valuable tool for discussion and iteration in the design process.

Visual Design

Visual Design Wireframes are often built in the advanced stages of the design process to communicate design decisions and to provide a blueprint for developers to follow the final product
